

Lion Syrup

A co-product from Ethanol Production

What is Lion Syrup

Lion Syrup is the liquid co-product from the Ethanol industry. After the corn is crushed and yeast and water are added the mix is then fermented. The co-products from this are a solid fraction which is marketed as Lion Gold. The liquid fraction which is a low dry matter liquid is evaporated to make Lion Syrup.

Lion Syrup is a highly palatable moist feed which is suitable for all ruminants.

Protein is both degradable and undegradable making it an extremely useful concentrate to feed with forage.

A consistent product made in a world class manufacturing Ethanol facility.

Safe to feed up to 10% of total dry matter intake due to its low oil and dry matter.

Inclusion in all diets must be based on the dietary balance of the total ration.

Fed exclusively as a dietary ingredient. Renard Syrup adds a binding quality to a diet. It also improves the palatability of coarser lower value forages to increase intake.

Key Features & Benefits

| | |
|-------------------|------------|
| Dry Matter | 32% |
| Protein | 23% |
| Oil | 4% |

Additional benefits include:

- Highly palatable, increases feed intake, reduces sorting, and minimizes dust.
- Versatile feeding options: Can be fed on its own with fiber sources like corn stalks/green silage/soy hulls to dry cows, heifers, and growing cattle.

Full Analysis:

A complete nutritional and mineral analysis is available upon request from our technical team.

Handling and Storage:

- Lion Syrup is a 30% dry matter liquid, and should be stored in a clean tank, protected as practical from temperature extremes. The liquid can be moved by pumping or gravity where conditions permit. Tanks should be sluiced out monthly and deep cleaned every 6 months. Lion Syrup is delivered at 60-70F. As there is some free sugars plus some degradable protein these types of liquids are good breeding grounds for microbes. Hygiene is important when dealing with Lion Syrup.

Your Local Wet Feed Supplier

With over 25 years of expertise in managing the supply and distribution of wet feeds, Specialist Nutrition is your trusted partner for wet feed products in Wisconsin.

We also offer on-farm advice on storage, handling, and feeding practices.

Don't hesitate to contact our team for any assistance we can provide.